T H E C I T Y A U D I T O R S H I P.

TO THE RATEPAYERS OF SYDNEY.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having elected me City Auditor in April last as an untried man, about twelve months the number of votes polled by all the other competing candidates, I do myself the honour to respectfully solicit a renewal of your confidence at the forthcoming election, on 1st December proximo.

JAMES CARROLL,
City Auditor,
Professional Accountant, and Finance Agent.

E L E C T I O N O F T H E C I T Y A U D I T O R.

TO THE CITIZENS OF SYDNEY.

Being a candidate for this office, I have pleasure in soliciting the favour of your vote. In the course of the past year, having a SPECIAL AUDIT in connection with the City Council, I discovered and exposed an extensive system of embezzlement in one of its departments, which had been in force for years undetected. My report (which appeared in full in the daily papers of 28th September last), will doubtless be of great service to the City. Having thus rendered you very valuable service, I now ask for election to this important office, and trust to receive your confidence.

JAMES ROBERTSON,
of Boulton and Robertson,
Public Accountants,
Wynyard-street.

M R. GEORGE CHRISTIE FOR CITY AUDITOR.

THE CITIZENS OF SYDNEY.

Gentlemen,—In view of the ELECTION on 1st DECEMBER NEXT, and at the end of my first year of office, I beg to announce myself a Candidate for re-election as one of the City Auditors.

During the year, and just as I had returned from England, announcement was made of the death of a nobleman which had been perpetrated prior to my term of office, but by general misapprehension, I was not aware of the fact.

mentioned that, as it is practically impossible to provide portions of the North Shore with to the metropolis was not of such magnitude as that relating to the sewerage system, yet it always has been much anxiously on account of the very important issue involved. Last year the average daily consumption of water was no less than 6,300,000 gallons, or an average of 25 gallons per head.

The work of aligning the city was not commenced until about half a century ago. In the year 1834 Mr. Twenstend prepared two plans showing the existing streets, and shortly afterwards a notice in the Reading Gazette proclaimed and duly aligned the streets according to those plans. The number of thoroughfares of those days was, however, limited, and it was issued a sort of government plan arrangement has been adopted, the results of which are apparent in scores of instances at the present day. The Sydney Corporation Act of 1879, however, empowers the council to align all roadways in the city, but, there being insufficient data to enable them to determine the alignment of the roadways as originally intended, they were as defined by the plan back upon the Government alignments as defined by the plan back upon the Government alignments are noticeable imperfections of these thoroughfares. The council, being fully aware of this, lately decided to borrow money for the purpose of purchasing and acquiring property with the view of widening some of the streets and otherwise improving the city. They have also decided to levy a rate of 3d. in the £d. in the £ for a period of 10 years, for the purpose of the loan. Plans showing the proposed alignments are being prepared for public inspection, to enable those interested to make objections if they think proper. The plans will be forwarded to the Executive for approval. In regard to the construction and grading of roadways, very great difficulties are continually encountered in consequence of irregularities and want of judgment in building streets which are self-evident even to a casual observer.

Many of the roadways of the city are still in a bad state; but much has been done, and is being done, in the way of wood-paving. The total number of yards of wood-paving in the city up to the end of last year amounted to 190,250, or about 89 acres, of which 120,015 square yards were laid during the year. One-hundred square yards were laid for every acre of the extent of the city. The city has 2,140,000 square yards of pavement, 4906 square yards: far paving to the extent of 1,615 square yards, and flagging 5742 square yards. There are altogether about 100 miles of streets and roads in the city to keep in repair and cleanse, and this work requires quite an army of labourers. The width of the wood-paving is swept every night, and macadamised streets are regularly cleaned. They are attended to as often as circumstances demand. Some of the principal roadways are watered daily with salt water obtained by pumping from the harbour: this is also used in cleaning the markets. Last year 113,000,000 gallons were pumped by four engines, at a cost of £1000, and was used for a variety of other purposes. Very few of the streets of the city can be pronounced to be in a satisfactory condition, owing to the absence of any legal provision enabling the council to enforce uniformity either in material or workmanship. It is probable, however, that efforts will be made to obtain powers whereby the laying of road-paving shall be placed directly in the hands of the council.

The Australian Gaslight Company, under an agreement with the council, provide all necessary appliances for lighting the city. At the present moment there are 2123 lamp posts, but the number is being continually augmented. Each lamp costs £5 10s. per annum. The council has just received proposals from the Government to ask Mr. Cranknell to advise them as to the adaptability of the electric light for lighting the city.

The appliances for extinguishing fires are of a most complete character, and the facilities for their use are being constantly added to and improved. Hydrants, or fire-plugs, are placed at intervals of 75 yards, and are numbered throughout the city. In some of the less favored parts of the city the presence of water is so great that the hose is attached to the plug and used without the aid of a fire-plug. In all streets through which the trams run drains mains are laid, hydrants being placed on alternate sides of the streets. The engine stations are under the con-

Notwithstanding the enormous number of cars passing through the city daily, the amount of vehicular traffic has not only not decreased, but appears to have actually increased by the operation. During the eight years that the trolleys have been running the number of licensed cars has increased by nearly 100 per cent. The omnibus traffic, however, is not so great as formerly in those parts served by transit.

The foundation stone of the Town Hall was laid by the Duke of Edinburgh in 1868, and the building was opened on the 1st of July, 1874. The Centennial Hall, which is rapidly approaching completion, will be a magnificent structure, surpassing in size and appointments anything of a similar character that has yet been attempted. The building is now prepared for it will be the grandest ever being erected in reference to the Town Hall, it may not be out of place to mention that the Executive Council of the day gave the first City Council a piece of land between Bridge and Bent streets, consisting of about five acres, conditionally on the council expending £10,000 within seven years in the erection of a Town Hall. This gift, however, was not owing to the non-fulfilment of the conditions, but to the re-establishment of the Corporation, who had transferred their authorities to the building now known as the Oxford Hotel, King-street, and afterwards in Wyndham-gate. Later on they made a claim to the land previously forfeited, and succeeded in obtaining it. Instead, however, of building a town-hall on the site, they sold the land for about £20,000. At a rough calculation the property must be worth to-day not far short of half a million sterling.

The total area of the city is about 2700 acres, including all land reserved as places of public resort. These consist of the Domain, Hyde Park, Belmore Park, Prince Alfred Park, Victoria Park, and some of the smaller reserves. The area of Moore Park is 200 acres. Some of these reserves are vested in the council and others in trustees.

The total number of horses in the city is about 20,000, and the total number of electors at the last election, 1914, was 7916. Of these 501 are entitled to one vote, 252 to two votes, 1904 to three votes, and 2709 to five votes. The capital value of rateable property in the city is £11,929,520; the total estimated annual value of rateable property is £2,008,476; the total annual assessed value of rateable property is £1,900,886.

The maximum rate of the Municipal Council for the year 1914-15 was 1s. 2d. in the £, and the actual rate levied for the current year is 1s. 6d. in the £ pound; the sewerage rate is 6d., and the water rate is 1d. per pound. The amount of revenues derived from rates, rents, baths, wharfs, and other miscellaneous sources during last year was £192,355 13s. 1d., and the amount expended on improvements, salaries, and miscellaneous items was £190,458 8s. 4d. The Government grant was £29,000, and the total income and expenditure is £29,000 per annum.

With the exception of the three years 1854, 1855, and 1856, during which the civic business was administered by paid Commissioners, the mayor has been occupied since the establishment of the municipality by the following gentlemen:—

DEBILITATION

[illegible]

IN THE HOUSE.

Friday night sittings are generally very weary affairs to the Assembly. Everybody wishes there was no sitting, and Ministers and the faithful Gang for the night to come. Last session the House generally adjourned before 10 o'clock p.m., but this session the sittings have been as long as those of any other night, and this in spite of the fact that the House meets an hour earlier. What good has the earlier hour done? It was got by by a fast day off Friday, and the day was lost on an hour each day, and the despatch of business will be just as great. It was the plea of the Government. So it was done and before a month went round the Government raised the cry of "Opposition obstruction—and no work done." Then Friday was taken back again, and the world of talk revolves just as it did in the shorter days, without more work and without any visible benefits by reason of the changes. Take one case in point. How many much worse motions have been struck on average, and what would the percentage be? The most useless proposals receive the most attention. The simplest motions provide the greatest discussion, and after an ocean of puff-blowing eloquence is set rolling through the bad air of the world, the legislators cry: "Build what noble things we do! See how we slew the Philistines!" There are a number of members who say but little, and a number of them who say nothing at all in the House. They are the men who obstruct business by the exercise of their vanity in speech. Some of the least in intellect and judgment are those that say the most. Out of a multitude of words proceedeth little strength. From all the effort and display comes little legislation. There are matters dragged before the Assembly every day which do not belong to its regular work, and which might better have been left alone. Yesterday the motion for the new papers was brought forward, and the motion for adjournment by Mr. Halsey was made, and much time was occupied in discussing it. Take this week, and how much can be pointed to as profitable and effective discussion.

[illegible]

The institution was more than freely thrown out of the selling of the paper in the streets of Saragossa, and his stately and well-published public statement about the Premier. The Premier was very vain, His holy shock, and his eyes twined with anger as he thundered out a repudiation of the insinuations. His words of a degradation was startling, and he refused to give Mr. Lluís or anyone any satisfaction regarding the matter. He did not think it was the duty of the Government to intermeddle in all the matters. The police had their office, and the Government theirs; and if the former thought they had a case they were responsible for it. Mr. Walker made a most tempestuous oration, which grew more and more irritable in sentiment as it went on. The Opposition were very concerned for the honor of public men, and especially for that of Sr. Illegués. They would think that the opposition of the Government to the alleged threatened thunder last night, that the only true friends of the leader of the Government were the Throned Immortals and a few others. Very seditions were they for the purification of the wicked press, and the maintenance of the dignity of the Gladiatorial Godfather of the colony. When some of his statements excited the laughter of the Throned Immortals, Mr. Walker went into hysterics. Lear with all his rage wasn't a patch on him, or Caliban either, or a wayward mouse, or a feeding-time. He gasped out distinctly a monologue of the imbecile laughter of the byish Attorney-General, and he simply cast himself like shell as the Minister of the said still refused to quail. But there was never a quail. After chewing his fill there was none left to make a decent mouthful, and he gave way. Mr. Walker, who seemed maddened under him by crying that the Government were right in having nothing to do with the matter. The proper place of appeal was to the Supreme Court, and there the thing should go. The question should be asked, He believed that the conviction would be quashed in the Supreme Court. But it was Mr. Melville who did the thing up brown. It was he who wrangled the lion's skin about his own form, and he was the one who was the one for the fray. If the First Immortal only appeared once every night he would be humorous. Why doesn't he do as stars do and not make himself too cheap? An occasional appearance would be refreshing, for really this gentleman is the person mentioned in the Catechism. Thus it runs: "What is your name—N or M?" Answer: The First Immortal. "Both?" Answer: The Catechism, credited with a catastrophic phrase. I and M are the mystery of childhood solved. N and M are the ambitious, romantic, and convulsive names of for Northumberland. He said something in his speech, but what it was when boiled down is hard to tell. It was chiefly extravagant banter and mere bravado. It was the Liberal's boast, though nearly got himself into trouble, by saying his jokes again on the Opposition, and he started an avenger that was after him like a Duklie snake. Mr. Haseall and he fell foul, and things began to darken till Mr. H. threatened what he would do when he got the L. I. out. The L. I., in apologising, said that he wouldn't enter into a quarrel with the hon. gentleman, because he'd be taken up by the police for killing a cat within the city limits. Mr. Haseall's hands trembled, his body shook with passion, his face grew white, and, after pausing for a minute, he sprang quickly up and walked across the Chamber towards the L. I. The Little Lionheart turned pale too, and resisted in his anger till he suddenly swung himself in the seat beside Mr. McMillan, and let the L. I. go on. It looked like trouble. The L. I. looked very uncomfortable during the remainder of his speech, and made some wandering remarks that were not characteristic of his having his wits about him.

"Honour is a mere euphemism,
And ends my catechism."

This is the sort of text that would have fitted upon N. and M.'s second speech last night, upon the Naval Defence Bill. Before the speech, the captain, after tea he "fought a long hour by the Shrewsbury clock." How this Parliamentary Catechism kept things going! How he rasped out bushels of acrid words upon the "national honour of England!" Someone had hinted that the "national honour" was a mere make thing, a mere square thing with no reality in the naval defence matter, and said as N. and M. give us all the worn-out notions and obsolete armaments for which we would pay beyond all decency and fairness. "National honour"? N. and M. asked. "National honour"? he astutely repeated. "Talk to me about England and the honour of England!" There he entered into a dispute with Mr. Forster, and said that it was a mere fable. Well, the Little Lionheart and Chamberlain's history, like that of the Quasibay Democrat's classics is a little doubtful in its correctness. Toward the latter part of the speech N. and M. gave one of his wily masterpieces on the wonder and the power of Australia. One would have thought that there was a nation of 30 or 40 millions. The morose character is a brave bird who surrounds himself with a bush, but he isn't all creation. It takes a little time though, to find it out. Mr. McMillan said that if the Second Immortal had a few years abroad he would come back a different man—wiser, kinder, and a noble-hearted politician. The same might be said of Mr. McEville. He has a lot of native ability, and a lot of heart, but he is not fit for anything (that might be added to his composition still.

upon the question. He did what he has not often done before—commanded the House. He put the matter very fairly and broadly. Mr. Haynes came in for a share of his criticism, and it was no meagre share either. The argument advanced by several speakers that England was simply protecting her commerce and doing her duty when she put a naval force in these waters, was not boldly. He plainly said that the only defence of the measure was that it was only fair that we should bear the expense; but outside the protection of commerce there was the matter of coastal defence for which England was surely not entirely responsible. Mr. McEldowney was very worth in his denunciation of the bill. He wanted to see Parliament and the country right on the question, and that means of doing so was to say that it was that wonderful creature of romance who used to cry, "Fie, fie, fie, fume, I smell the blood of an Englishman!" He declared defiantly that the country and all the sensible members of the House were against the iniquitous bill while the la-di-da country and the Tories were with it. Mr. Frank Smith said a remarkably good thing when he stated, with brutal truth, that the great thing for people to do was to stand up and say that the bill had not the unfortunate air, their particular fade and pump thunder, Mr. R. B. Wilkinson and Mr. Ellis delivered speeches in support of the bill in a desecratory sort of way. The subject was threshed out long before this time, and there was little interest taken in these orations. Mr. Ellis, though, was not to be trifled with. He was in a fighting mood, and a little party of excited men that fell after this was the speech of Mr. Stephens. He was a great surprise party. He worked himself up into a splendid heat; he walked up and down and across the Chamber, and flung javelins of satire at Mr. Melville. His satire is not very neat, but it gets there. An attempt was made to get an adjournment of the discussion, but it failed. The most distinguished speaker that succeeded was Mr. Schey, who out of a good deal of pomposity still managed to make the best speech that has been made against the bill. The discussion was distractingly on long past midnight.

"AY, marry, now unamaze your wisdom."—ROSALIND.

I sometimes doubt whether "the Oracle" could ever have so far forgotten, or been frightened out of, their duties to criticize, as to have been, for a year, for any considerable period, dumb. Pythia at a certain crisis may have found business dull at Delphi, and so have deemed it necessary to enter into partnership with another firm in another country; but it is hard to believe that chronology could have ever got out of Pythia's head for long. I have never seen a medicine man, and ever have always been as indisputable as the priest. We, of the nineteenth century, do without Pythia and others of her order, because it would be too expensive and tedious to make pilgrimages to some out-of-the-way robber-haunted Delphi, or Delona, or to some Cave of Trophonius, to the disturbance of its more respectable persons, to consult the Oracle, and ever has, and will have our oracles none the less, and the ruthless and relentless reporter of the daily press is the man who does the "consultations" for us, and daily publishes them in time for breakfast or afternoon tea. All the London clubhouses are in their hyperborean way, any oracles, and so are some of our newspapers, and any and all questions in the "Regeneration." How many invaluable predictions have issued from that almost sacred fane, where sits Cleveville robed in the affections of an entire people, and ready to "unmaze wisdom" to the humblest interviewer. Then there are those other sanctuaries of profound thought, the "Athenaeum," "The Standard," "The Britisher," &c., each provided with its due proportion of Seers, ready to expound to you the Rabbit Question, the Sugar Question, The Defiant, the Boat-race, "Free-Tection"—everything under the sun, or the Southern Cross, down to the new name for New South thing based on our merited vices and sins. I have approached that grand assembly, and the desire of some of our orators; and one of the first indications of republican success has generally been a repudiation of all just debts and liabilities. All things considered, I don't know that we should be the worse of a little more of that much abused Imperialism. At any rate, it is generally accompanied by recognition of national obligations.

Mr. O'Sullivan and Mr. Cameron were agreed for once. They both indulged in plenty of "blow," and were it not that the bull is so far symbolical that I might be suspected of a pun, I would say that they reminded me not a little of the frog in the bala. So far they are alike, and free trade snakes handle with protection. It is, I suppose, better to employ the services of men of our own, who are wiser and more experienced, rather than to buy them from the English race. Here is your chance, gentlemen, of establishing a native industry; and possibly you will get your way, and the whole matter may come to nothing after all. "The said agreement is hereby ratified and approved, subject, nevertheless, to its ratification and approval by the Parliament of the United Kingdom, and the said agreement is particularly to the said agreement." How about Queensland?

I think I read Sunday newspapers as little as any body, but I cannot understand why other people should not be allowed to do so if they like. This seems to me to be one of those instances of disguised religious intolerance, gross as a camel but more easily swallowed, than a goat. And how about Mr. Fisher's decision? Mr. Field was surely right, but his conduct in the Action was a little divisible into two halves, the first of which defines the offence, while the second attaches the penalty to it. Mr. Fisher seems to hold that they can be read apart, and that the second adds something which was left out of the first. I venture to doubt whether this is the case, and would suggest Touching which name (&c., "Australia") Clovellides and Cantuarivs having been duly consulted, it seemed to this present suppliant only fair to appeal to my venerable friend "Chremosolus" at the "Antioch-fores" for light and leading. And this was the way that Sir Henry Bosc (said &c.) ought to have impaled. The Governor, ought instantly to remove him from office. Men have been beheaded, bowstrunged, crucified, impaled, hanged, drawn, and quartered for less than this. He has been guilty of the grandest larceny ever committed. Every one of the colonies ought to petition the Queen to remove him from office, and send him up to the Tower. He has partitioned federation for half a century. Victorians, South Australians, Tasmanians, Queenslanders, West Australians have all boycotted us. Victoria will double the stock tax and empty the river Murray. Queensland will put a poll tax on New South Wales. Queensland will put the Tasmanians and the pharisees to confound James the Tynan. South Australia will clap tremendous import duties on our coal, and give bonuses to her people to drop rabbits over our border. Tasmania will prevent our people from summering at Hobart. There will be chaos, perhaps bloodshed. God only knows how it will end. And then he dropped into poetry, as he threw away the scribble of his signature.

Who stole my purse stolen trash; 'tis nothing, 'tis nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
But he that fishes from me my good name
Robs me of what I cannot give again,
And makes me poor indeed." (4)

From poetry, Chremolucous deviated into profanity. So I took my leave, but scored rather than enlightened.

Passing on "Chremolucous," I got among the darning-needle folk and a great crowd of club president. From them I infer that the poem proposed by Sir Henry Parkes is not very acceptable. They think it a fad; and as sentiment has so little to do with the price of butter, new laid eggs, new potatoes, tolocco, and other necessities of democratic life, they are not sympathetic. Most of them were thinking rather of to-day's race on the Nepean, to tell the truth, and I was not in a position to predict the success of the new name, and my reasons for doing so are daily improving in force and volume.

As to the controversy between the two colonies, I do not intend to controvert Dr. Creedy's statement that the early days of settlement were a time of mutual enmity. It is a considerable, but I think a somewhat exaggerated, and certainly a one-sided, voice the much-vaunted boast of "Victorians generally" that they are the peculiar people of the Australians, and altogether free from prejudice. Melbourne people, among other things, are proud of their position as the first colony of the South, and therefore, for climatic reasons, they claim a moral and intellectual superiority over their neighbours. I am not prepared to dispute the fact that the latter are less in the assertion that their colony was never a penal settlement and they never had anything to do with convicts. Why such a declaration is as fallacious as it is impudent, I do not mean to say. The first settlement of the South Wales, was at the date of the founding of Melbourne part of a penal settlement, and whatever population was in the place at the time of its founding was made up of convicts from the penal colonies of New South Wales and Tasmania, chiefly from the latter. Victoria was first settled by colonists from Tasmania, and a steady stream of convicts from the colony of New South Wales, to the Straits to the mainland. Whatever trade was done with Geelong, Port Melbourne, and Port Fairy was done by the merchants of Hobart Town, and the people of Northern Tasmania, and the colony was a real colony, a colony between the two colonies. If the history of Victoria, as

The Government has been very kind, and more thoughtful, in providing its Civil Servants with the means of a comfortable life, than the Government of the approaching Centennial Bazaar. An ordinary employee would, in his stupidity, have probably told his employees that he meant to give them a few pounds or shillings extra so that they might rejoice without too much thinking of the new Bankruptcy Act. But this superfluous Government of ours has not done that. It has not even thought of, or rather the public servants, to enjoy the first month of 1888 it has docked their salaries, on an average, of about 6 per cent. This confiscation will produce a little less than £100,000, and it will therefore provide sufficient funds to allow of Mr. Garrett's payment of Members Bill, being introduced and carried in the House of Commons. And, as the really indispensable and patriotic jobs can be put through, and the money exacted from the public servants. But as it is the intention of the Government to reduce the salaries of the Governor, and the Judges, and, above all, their own, the Civil servants will find themselves in good company. The Centennial Bazaar, for which a joint committee has been appointed, and which is just being celebrated, to a large extent, by the sale of those unhappy beings who have no friends, the small tradesman; but then, you see, somebody must pay the piper. I merely remark, on the whole case, "Advance Australia!"

It was an amusing treat to find Mr. Dibbs and Joseph Abbott in agreement upon the Naval Subsidy question, and for pretty well the same reasons. Of Mr. Reid, Mr. Copeland, and Mr. Slattery one felt sure, and likewise of others who are willing to vote away some £25,000 of the people's money not to establish what some critics are angrily disparaging as "Imperial military colonies," to the great advantage of the Empire. The question would be (Mr. Haynes thinks) how to make this happy colour, but for quite another purpose. But what can have taken possession of Mr. Gar and Mr. Cameron to steal away their common sense? And why did Mr. O'Sullivan try and lash himself into a patriotic rage, as if he had been accused for bartering away the liberties of his country for the sake of securing the support of a chaparral and best premium ever paid by the Commonwealth State for a policy of insurance good against the war. Sir Henry Parkes introduced the bill, and ex-

THE SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

PENRITH, Friday.
To-day has been hotter than ever, but notwithstanding the great heat everyone is looking forward to to-morrow's contest with eager expectation. If the weather is fine, a good race may be expected, as both men are in great form and very confident. A magnificent contest should take place, for a mile at any rate, as the scullers will doubtless try to catch each other down from the start. It is a natural consequence. Beach will probably jump off at about 4 to the minute, and the Canadian is sure to get away with a very fast stroke. The pace for the first few hundred yards will probably be terrific, and those who wish to see the race proper should get on the banks of the river near the mile mark. Beach's style of rowing is equal to, if not superior to, that of any other sculler in the world, and in this respect he undoubtedly ranks first in this respect, he undoubtedly ranks first in this respect, he undoubtedly ranks first in this respect.

[illegible]

Beach does not intend to row to-day. He is following his usual custom in taking a spell before the race.

Hanlan may take a pudden on the river, but he is not likely to do anything more.

Peter Kemp and Chris. Nelson will row Beach's boats—the Amy Punch and Tom Muir—up to Ewan's boatshed at an early hour to-morrow morning, and the champion and his friends will be driven thither some time before the race. Hanlan's boats will also be taken up to this shed, and both men will be well rubbed down prior to 3 o'clock. According to the articles the race must be started soon after 3 p.m..

A number of the water police, with three boats, have arrived, in order to keep the crowd clear and assist in the search for the fugitives. The boats of foot police are expected to arrive here this evening.

Mr. Walker, stationmaster at Ennu Plains, has been notified by the railway authorities that the excellency of the Governor will arrive at 1 p.m. to-morrow.

The steam-launch Leila has been running on the Nepon to-day. The river is falling.

At 10 o'clock to-day, the town of Ennu Plains is quite full. Betting is about $5 to 20 on each.

Amongst those who came up to Penriti were Messrs. J. G. Peckie, Tom Clifford, Halligan, Spencer, and Kelly. The latter two were accompanied by a friend, as well as he as he was informed that Beatch had captured on the river and lost three wheels off one of his sleds. Immediately after the capture of the fugitives, the latter were taken to Mr. John Thompson set to work and had six wheels cast and turned. These he brought with him this morning, only to find, however, that he had been wronged. His friend, in the matter, however, shows clearly where his heart lies.

We understand that amongst those who intend to be spectators of the contest for the championship are the Hon. Mr. Justice (Hon. W. Clarke), who will be passengers by the train leaving Sydney at a quarter past 1 o'clock.

WHAT THE SCULLERS THINK ABOUT THE RACE.

From interviews with Beach and Hanlan, as well as with their respective trainers, we gathered the following information that throws some light on the race which will develop into a matter of interest in view of the fact that the contest takes place to-morrow afternoon.

The champion, in answer to questions put to him, said he felt he would win the race, and when he remembered that he had defeated Hanlan twice, he did not see what chance he had of beating him (Beach) again. The Daupo man is of opinion that he can row better now than he ever did at any time during his career. Seeing that he had beaten Hanlan by nearly 200 yards, he thought the Canadian in this contest. Beach says he will row the best piece he ever rowed in his life on Saturday afternoon, and if he beaten on his merits, he will admit that he is thoroughly defeated. He says that he is not at all afraid of the contest, and is satisfied he will row Hawaiian hard right through, win or lose; but I think the Canadian will row use a great deal of his strength in the first half of the contest, and struck to his work well. If I beat him the race will not be grumble, as he has everything his own way. He has chosen the course, fixed the time of starting, picked the boat, and the men, and he will be sure to put up with articles himself. I do not think those articles would have been signed by anyone but myself. I am going to retire at the end of this race, win or lose—that is, I will not row again, and I do not want to be a champion for my own pleasure, nor to not to defend or uphold the championship, which belongs to the people of Australia, and not to me. Let the people pick their best man to do battle for the championship, and I will be glad to see them let someone else keep it. I have kept it for more than three years, and I am tired of it. I am of opinion that Peter Macdonald is the best man to have the championship, and I am glad to see him have the championship. He has offered to row and to man herring myself. In conclusion, I may say that I feel fit and well, and I am confident of being able to win the contest. I am sure that the people, with the public and private form Beach is almost bound to win.

Peter Kemp, who has been training Beach for the past two months, says he thinks the champion's chances are pretty good. Kemp says he has never seen a horse like the one he has over. Peter thinks the Diplo man will strike about 40 strokes to the minute at the start. "That," adds Kemp, "about his 'go' when he has got it all on him." Peter says Beach will lead at the take-off, and from that start the race will be his.

Haalen had no objection to conversing upon the subject, but he was not at all sure that he was going to win. "I think about the race? Well, if there were not two owners, I would take two different opinions, there would be no race. I am a student of winning, and will row a race that may surprise a lot of people. I have been rowing for a long time, and I have my own opinion that I will win. I feel it all right and strong, and well, and I have done all I can do, according to my condition, to get ready for this particular race. I can get away at the start but on one occasion, and that was by Tomer, who rowed me on Toronto Bay and beat me. He obtained the victory from me before I commenced to move. I hope we shall have a rowing race, and I think I can win. Everything will go off in a sportsmanlike manner."

George Perkins, Haalen's trainer, thinks that the Canadian will win. He says he has never seen a horse like him row better, and if he rows the race according to his own opinion, he ought not to be beaten by Beach. He is of opinion that

He would go away at a fast rate of speed—too fast for him to follow. He would be back in a minute. "Keep it quiet," he said, "a little too low for the champion. He is not doing good solid work since he commenced to train. The Canadian will probably now about 38 to the minute, slacken down to 35 to the minute." Perkins concludes thus:—"Before Hanlan went through the water, I thought he was done, but after some time his row day I think he is in better form now than he has ever been. Not only that, but he has very fast spins on the Nepman, having recently rowed the 1000 yards in 22 minutes, an average of 30 strokes to the minute. I expect to see a great race."

He thinks that Hanlan has a good chance of winning, as he is excellent settle-in—in fact he never was better settle-in time during the whole of his rowing career. "Hanlan's party," said Bret, "do not under-rate the strength of their opposition in the heat; on the contrary, they think it will be a very close race. The Nepman is a good deal of pulling off, and he is a very fast man. He is a very fast man, and he is off." If it is a hard race, with fast water, and with such a strong opposition, Bret says it will be rowed in 22 minutes.

THE COMPETITORS.
Below we make a brief reference to the competitors, and give an account of their respective achievements:—

WILLIAM BEACH.
William Beach is not a native of this colony. He claims, however, to be in every sense an Australian. Born near London in 1852, he was four years of age when brought to his residence in the Highlands of Scotland, where he remained until his father's home. Here he resided as a school boy; here he worked as a youth, and here he was married. For many years he laboured in his father's smithy, and to the hard toil there he is probably indebted for the determination to devote his life to the now present. His first lessons in rowing were taken on the Hiawatha Lake; but he did not immediately meet with a large share of success. His first victory was in a race against a publican, and the stakes were considerable. The average age of the competitors was about 25 years. He spent upon the water, and he so improved himself by practice that he soon took away all the prizes. He was very much surprised when he was asked to race him, and when very long he discovered that this had been done to secure such an extent that he was practically out of all the races. About 1881, principally through the patronage of the "Herald," he was successful in a regatta at the Hiawatha Lake, in Waukegan, for a $25 prize, presented by Mr. Deeble, he was successful, and beat Ward, a local fisherman, and Jenkins. He was successful in the regatta at Waukegan, in 1882, for a $25 prize, presented by the "Herald." In 1882, he was defeated by Neil McDonald. He pulled off over the Paramatta champion course for $200, and on the side on the Paramatta, he was successful, and he again met Neil McDonald on the Paramatta, and this time was victorious. He beat Charles Solomon and Charles Reynolds on the Paramatta course, and he was successful in the regatta at Waukegan, in 1883, for a $25 prize, presented by the "Herald." He was successful in the regatta at Waukegan with the coast for the Francis Pugh trophy, in 1884, which he was not successful, being beaten by Rush. He beat

The champion will row in the Tom Muir or the Amy Punch, according to the state of the weather. The latter is the most suitable for rough weather. The following are the measurements of the two boats: Tom Muir.—31 ft. 6 in.; beam, 10 in.; depth amidships, 9 1/2 in.; aft 2 in.; forward, 2 1/2 in.; spread of outriggers, 4 ft. 8 1/2 in.; weight, 72 lb. Amy Punch.—Length, 31 ft. 6 in.; beam, 10 in.; depth amidships, 6 in.; aft, 2 1/2 in.; forward, 3 1/2 in.; spread of outriggers, 4 ft. 8 1/2 in.; weight, 32 lb. The height of the outriggers is 10 in. from the skin; his seat is 10 in. from the skin. Most other scullers row at 7 in. from the bottom of the boat. Kemp's seat is 9 in. from the skin. Beach rows with a 12 in. stretcher.

The champion's height is 6 ft. 9 in.; chest measurement, 42 in.; biceps, 19 1/2 in.; calf, 10 in. Beach will row at 12 1/2 in.

[illegible][illegible]

Hanlan has not yet decided whether he will use the new boat named the Nepean, or the R. A. Watson. The following are the dimensions of the Nepean:—Length, 31ft. 6in.; beam, 10ft. 10in.; depth, 5ft. 1in.; amidships: aft, 2m.; fore-and-aft, 2m. 6in.; depth of hold, 1m. 6in.; depth of keel. With the exception of being 3in. in depth forward the dimensions of the other boat—the R. A. Watson—are similar to those of the Nepean. She is a stiffer boat than the other craft; her weight is 30lb. Hanlan will not use the Watson until he has had the American boat thoroughly overhauled, with a ridge down the center. Height of Hanlan's outriggers, 11ft. 1in.; seat, about 7in.; stretcher, 11in. Hanlan measures 40ft. round the chest; 13in. round the loope; calf, 15 1/2 in.; height, 5ft. 9in. His weight on the day of the race will be 162. 13lb.

TRAIN ARRANGEMENTS.

Special trains will leave Sydney to-day for Penrith, as under:—

Leave Sydney at 8.55, 10.25, and 10.45 a.m.—second class carriages only—faras—to Penrith, which include entrance to enclosure. Trains will also leave at 11.55 a.m., 12.5, 1.15, 12.25, and 12.55 p.m.—faras (including entrance to enclosure), first-class, 7s. 6d.; second-class, 5s. 6d.

Additional trains will also leave Sydney to-day. These trains will provide accommodation for members of Parliament. Trains will return immediately after the race.

THE BETTING.

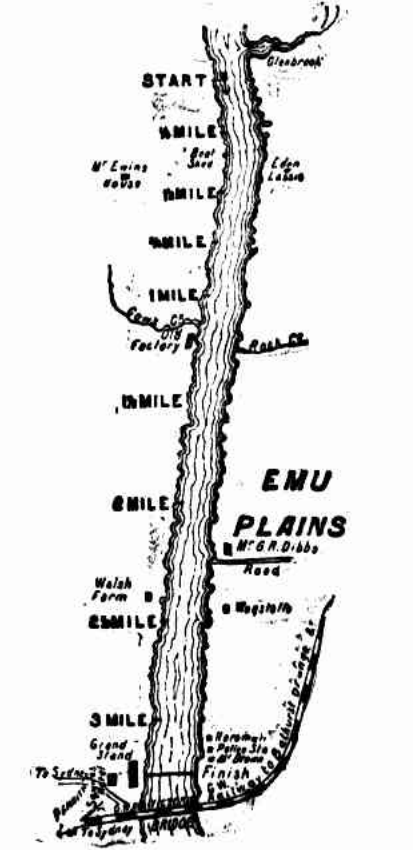

So far as professional bookmaking over the event is concerned, the poundings are still to have been almost nil. A few offers of 2 to 1 on the present stomper were made and accepted during the first half of the race, but here and there were registered at 3 to 1 on Friday, but these were snuffed, and still flag, about the contest. And not men declare for Beach, such qualifying postscripts as, "Well, I wouldn't like to say for certain, you know," "The Canadian's a white man, but he's a dark brown," "He knows all the numbers you go up," &c., &c., in scores of cases prove the general belief that the race is in a very open event. One fact the public may safely set their minds upon, and that is, that the contest will be a very close one, and the fastest sailing contestants will come off to-morrow that have ever been recorded in the annals of colonial aquatics. Huxley, it is well known, was a very fast swimmer, and in Sydney it was common talk that whoever wears of the palm will probably win by yards and not by length. This conjecture it is, of course, apparently without foundation, but it is a fact that the strongest swimmers have been going on for a week or more past.

"Unless," said one of the leading sportsmen of New South Wales, "the Englishman is a very fast swimmer, I believe they pop the stuff on to them after they enter their shells. I believe fifteen hundred pounds will cover every professional swimmer in Sydney." It's almost an any day of the week thing, and it will be a very close struggle then to risk their dollars over it. This expression of opinion, though disguised, is about as "straight" and safe as could well have been expressed.

THE NEPEAN COURSE.

The following is a view of the course from the start to the finish :—

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

PENRITH, FRIDAY NIGHT.

The afternoon trials brought a considerable number of visitors, especially sporting men from Sydney, and the town presents quite a lively appearance. The steam launch Leila is now in thorough working order, and quite ready to follow the race to-morrow. She was taken over the whole of the course this afternoon, amongst those on board being Mr. Joseph Thompson (Beach's backer) and Mr. T. R. Smith, who has worked exceedingly hard in assisting to complete the final arrangements for the reception of the victors and a few press representatives. The afternoon was very calm, and the wind died away as the men who knew the river. Opposite Glenbrook the steamer was headed down stream, and she went at her fastest rate of speed from the starting post to the mile post, the distance being accomplished in 6 minutes 30 seconds. It is said that she is capable of steaming faster than this, and if a proper course is taken she will assuredly be able to keep up with the scullers all the way through. Notwithstanding the fact that the heat here was almost tropical in its intensity this afternoon, the champions have had to make the trip a final spin prior to the race. They got aloft at 5.30, Beach using the Tom Muir. The men rowed up the river a couple of miles doing good solid work all the way, and then turned back to make the superior strength of the upward trip they had a very hard pull against a stiff northeast breeze the whole way, blowing right up stream; and here it may be remarked that if a similar strong wind prevails during the race to-morrow the superior strength of the Hawassa man may be able to row clean away from the Canadian. During the last mile Beach rowed about 20 strokes to the minute, and then on approaching the starting post he rowed the superior strength of the Hawassa man went out on the river by himself and took a couple of short spins in order to get his legs into the water. Mr. R. A. Smith, who was on his first trip, but he did not seem to me particularly good weather in her when coming down against the north-east, and his style of sculling was certainly not as perfect as that of the Canadian. The Canadian, however, was in fairly good form in the "Nepean," which carried him well. The Canadian came down the river at an average of from 28 to 30 strokes per minute. He finished well. Beach weighed 101.13lb. The champion will probably row the race at 12st. 3lb. The latest betting is as follows:—6 to 3 offered on Beach, but not taken—3 to 1 wanted. Mr. J. G. Thompson, who is the backer of the Canadian, has stated that it is a real good thing for Beach, and that he is certain to win. He thinks Beach ought to be a head at the third quarter of a mile, and says it is a moral for the black sculler to take a couple of strokes well, and he states that he feels very fit for the race.

CELEBRATION OF THE CENTENNIAL.

[illegible]

Hamilton, Victoria, November 21.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In connection with the editorial proposals there appears to me to be too little to mark the intellectual progress of this colony. An aquatic feat, something for the school children and aborigines, have been included; and it has been suggested that a prize should be offered for the best centenary ode and for essays. If these be restricted to native-born Australians the competitions will mark to a certain extent the intellectual progress of the country. But whilst song has been honoured, nothing whatever has been said about offering encouragement to the ennobling and humanising efforts of the poets and novelists.

Both public and private benevolence has provided scholarships in other walks of knowledge, and not only New South Wales, but all Australia has been honoured by the achievements of some of its children, who have thereby been able to give to the world new methods of learning. As an old colonist and professor of music, I would suggest that an yet another mode of marking the intellectual growth of Australia would be the granting of two or three musical prizes to the most distinguished of its children.

As shown by the Press reports, we have here in Sydney some very talented musical young people, and at least one child, who from infancy has exhibited phenomenal musical powers. His parents are of the greatest refinement, and executive skill. Experts of the highest calibre have been consulted, and have pronounced the various advantages of study in the musical centre of given the child the most brilliant future is undoubtedly before her, and that she would shed lustre on this southern land, and so she should be sent to Australia, where she will be mistaken the daughter of Australian-born parents, she can very justly be shown to be a genuine product of Australia.

By depicting some such plan as above suggested, we should be most distinctly and effectively promoting the artistic progress of the colony.

THE SYDNEY MAIL

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER.

A FINE ART PRODUCTION.

The forthcoming Christmas Number of the Sydney Mail will be one of the most interesting and valuable publications ever issued in Australia. The proprietors have resorted for publication to

A SLENDRO NOVEL,

"THEY WERE MARRIED!" written by that brilliant popular author, WALTER BESANT.

EQUAL IN LENGTH TO A THREE-VOLUME NOVEL.

It is a beautiful and charming production, and will be read with interest and with positive delight by all who can appreciate art and story. It is in the nature of a series of short stories, and its dependence on the fantastic skill in the creation of exciting scenes and incidents, which are so characteristic of the work of Walter Besant, will be found to be very delightful, and it is full of those beautiful passages of descriptive writing, which are so characteristic of his style. The story will be considered additionally interesting by

Although the story and the illustrations are the work of the same hand, the artist has been so successful in his work that the reader will be able to distinguish the work of the two hands.

very large outlay, the proprietors have resolved not to make an extra charge for the Mail with which this Art Supplement will be presented. The price will therefore be, as usual, SIXPENCE PER COPY.

THE COLOURED SUPPLEMENT

which will be given away with the number is one of the most effective coloured pictures ever issued. The subject is extremely concise, of great value, and of great interest.

Single copies will be posted to any country or international address by remitting 6d in stamps, or to Europe by adding 4d in postage.

Agents for the different country districts are now receiving applications for space. As the demand for space is sure to be large, advertisers are requested to make early application.

And then people ask:
"WHAT DOES MOTHER SEIGEL DO?"

GIVES RELIEF AT ONCE.
"38, Bloomfield-road, Plumstead,
Jan. 7, 1885.
"I find the sale of your medicines increases every year, and everyone speaks well of them that they have tried. I knew a lady that attended the Temple Hospital, in London, for some months, with pains in back and side, and hitherto, and could take no food, but got no benefit from any of the medicines they gave her. Her husband had taken all the medicine, and some bottles of your

THE EFFECT WAS MARVELOUS.
"Mottled Hall, Bangor, Jan. 5, 1885.
"I hear people constantly speak of the high quality of Peig's Syrup. There is a case of a very married lady in Anagony who had been suffering from stomach achings for a long period, who had consulted some of the best doctors in the district, but without deriving any benefit. She was daily getting weaker, but at last a friend persuaded her to try Peig's Syrup. She procured a bottle, and the effect was marvellous. She was greatly improved, and now she is strong and healthy as ever she has been."

DOES NOT RESTORE THE DEAD, BUT SAVES THE LIVING.

MR. J. V. SATILL, of Dunsmuir, Essex, writes, September, 1884:—“I introduced your medicines into Dunsmuir almost as soon as they were brought here. I sold in a short time eighteen pounds' worth. I have known many great cures of permanent character; and, as yet, no case of failure. Notwithstanding many cases of kindred kind a host of the dead to life. I believe it is a good medicine—it will not restore the dead to life, but it appears to save the living from dying.”

A CASE OF GRAVEL CURED.

“Fetichan, January 6, 1885.
“It has always given me pleasure to recommend your medicines to my customers, and the results of their use have invariably been most satisfactory. I could furnish you many testimonials. One case I will give you. A constable of the police force of Footing, S.W., where, for 15 many years he had a shop, was a patient of mine, suffering from a bad attack of gravel. In two weeks he was cured by Seigel's Styrap. He purchased a bottle at my shop, and by the time he had taken half of it he reported himself to me as quite cured. The effect was simply miraculous.

IS MOTHER SEIGEL RELIABLE?
Would respectable chemists write the following if not?
SURGICAL OPERATION AVERTED.
Titchener, December, 1884.
Mr. EDWARD CROKE, Chemist, writes:—"Your medicine maintains a steady sale in this district, and is well established in general favour. I know an old man, over 70, who some three or four years ago, was about to submit to the operation for stone. He certainly was suffering from some distressing symptoms, and could scarcely walk. Instead of taking that advice he tried Seigel's Syrup, with the result that, after one bottle, he could walk about fairly well, and, having taken three or four 2s 6d bottles, he was completely cured. He is still about, hale and hearty for his years. If any of the symptoms of the old trouble come on, he takes a few doses of the Syrup, and all is well again."

For quick baking. Raises bread, buns, rolls, muffins, and all kinds of cake, without the aid of yeast, saleratus, or cream of tartar, rendering them lighter, sweeter, and more palatable and wholesome. Avoids all decomposition of the flour as caused by yeast rising, thereby saving a large percentage of its most nutritious elements making the flour go one-fourth farther. Food raised by this Royal Baking Powder may be kept for years without becoming stale with impurities. Maintains its full strength in any climate at any time. Endorsed by the United States Government Chemists, and by the leading physicians and hygienists of America, and adopted for use by the United States Government. Guaranteed absolutely

For the convenience of advertisers, replies to advertisements may be sent to the Herald Office; but the proprietors do not accept any responsibility in this respect.

Births, Deaths, and Marriages, as each insertion.

Notices of BIRTHS and DEATHS cannot be inserted in the journal unless endorsed with the name and address of the person by whom they are sent.

Notices of MARRIAGES cannot be inserted unless certified as correct by the officiating Minister or Registrar.

Notices in consequence of the death of persons who have been buried in the cemetery of the church of St. Andrew, are not accepted for publication.
